  Employers must be equipped to monitor their workforce for symptoms and maintain a safe work environment, including reconfiguring and routinely sanitizing workspaces, requiring masks and temperature checks, and enforcing social distancing.
  - Non-essential workers and "vulnerable populations", such as older adults and those with underlying medical conditions, will be slower to return to the workplace. If you or someone you care for is considered a "vulnerable population", talk to your employer about options for telework and paid or unpaid leave.
